

ANIMAL AGRICULTURE IN CHINA

Program Description:

Join us and spend 3 weeks in China studying Chinese animal agricultural practices and its animal product consumption patterns. Students will station at Anhui Agricultural University in Hefei, and Chinese faculty and industry leaders will be invited to deliver lectures on Chinese animal production systems, as well as veterinary practices. Several field trips will be arranged to visit Chinese livestock and poultry farms. Experts of American companies related to animal agriculture in China may also be invited to give seminars on their foreign business development and management. Students will also have the opportunity to experience the culture, cuisine, language, and sightseeing of China.
