

Technical Writing and Presenting in Germany

Program Description:

Technical Writing and Presenting in Germany affords engineering students the opportunity to take one of their most important required courses in one of the most technologically, economically, and culturally vibrant cities in the world. This course will help to develop your professional persona by working on the writing and presenting done as engineers while also taking in all Munich/Bavaria has to offer: Gothic architecture, beer gardens, the Alps, and much more. For your weekends, Austria, Switzerland, France, and Amsterdam are easily accessible by train.

Program Dates:

July 2—August 4, 2017

Course:

GE 3513: Technical Writing and Presenting (3 credit hours)

Requirements:

Students need to have completed English Composition I and II, be of junior or senior standing, and have at least a 2.5 GPA in order to participate in this program. This course is a requirement for all engineering majors. Electrical and Computer engineering majors must take a specific section of GE 3513 that is taught in conjunction with the ECE Senior Design class. If an ECE student takes the course in Germany, he/she will still have to take the section taught in conjunction with the ECE Senior Design class as well.
